

Iowa Interfaith Power & Light is offering a 90-minute interactive program, Food • Faith • Climate: Connecting the Dots, providing education on how our food practices contribute to climate change and exploring how our faith traditions call us to respond with practical solutions.

When we sit down to dinner, we may not think about global warming, but as much as one third of the world's greenhouse gas emissions are connected to our food system.

Each of us, at every meal, can make a real difference that ensures a more climate-friendly food system. Fortunately, the ethical choices are also pleasurable choices that will improve the health of the planet and our bodies!

Schedule a workshop in your area by contacting programs@iowaipl.org.

Workshop participants will learn about solutions to the climate crisis that can be found at the end of our fork. We will:

- learn how our food system contributes to climate change
- reflect on what our faith traditions say about sustainable food systems
- look at our households' food practices
- create a plan to make climate-friendly choices

The workshop includes:

- pocket guides for sustainable eating
- tips and resources for making more climate-friendly choices
